

ABOUT THE FOUNDER

My name is Shamim. I'm a local Castle Hill resident, a mum of three, and the founder of Castle Hill Holiday Club.

Alongside being a parent, I work as a senior healthcare professional within CAMHs. My professional background means I work closely with children, young people and families, with a strong focus on safeguarding, emotional wellbeing, and safety. These are not just professional responsibilities for me, they are values that guide how I approach children's care every day.

I set up Castle Hill Holiday Club after recognising how challenging school holidays can be for families, particularly when affordable, local childcare options are limited.

This club has been created with intention and care. Sessions are structured, supervised and age-appropriate, with clear routines, calm boundaries and a strong emphasis on children feeling safe, settled and supported. I believe children thrive in environments where they feel understood, respected and emotionally secure, alongside having space to play, create and enjoy themselves.

Castle Hill Holiday Club reflects the values I hold as a parent, a professional and a member of this community – care, safety and consistency.
